

CDG Welcomes Nick Edwards as Sales Manager

Nick Edwards has joined Catering Design Group this month, as the new Sales Manager.

Nick has worked in the catering and hospitality industry for some 35+ years. Originally from an 'operational' background having trained as a Chef at Shrewsbury's Radbrook College before he embarked on a management development program that saw him undertake leadership roles in a number of independent restaurants and hotels.

Nick then joined the B&I sector working for one of the UK's leading catering contractors for several years before making a switch into the sales of commercial catering equipment back into the industry and workplace.

Originally with Lockhart for over 10 years, he has gone onto work for some of the country's leading commercial kitchen design houses including Vision CK and Hospitality Design.

Nick also ran his own catering equipment consultancy business from 2006 to 2014, overseeing some prestigious projects and refurbishments, which include sites such as Wembley Stadium, the Dept. for Education, Mod Abbey Wood and the Cotswolds Inns and Hotels Group.

Since joining CDG, Nick has said;

"I am really looking forward to working alongside the team at CDG who undoubtedly have a fantastic knowledge and skill set to continually produce stunning design creations from concept through to completion. I am particularly excited about being able to bring my knowledge and experience from kitchen design projects and aligning with the company's design team's Front of House creativity to offer our clients the full 'one stop shop' on turnkey design and install packages."
